

Lights, Camera, Action!

How the film industry represents the Deaf/HoH community

DeafandHoH.com

CELEBRITY SPOTLIGHT

Prominent Deaf Actress Millicent Simmonds starring in A Quiet Place Sequel

The 17-year-old Millicent Simmonds is a force to be reckoned with in the film industry. She stars in the prominent film "A Quiet Place" and will be starring in the upcoming Sequel set to release this summer! The films are set in the future where blind "alien-beings" have taken over the world and humans are in complete hiding. Silence is needed so these creatures do not attack. American Sign Language is utilized heavily in the film in order to communicate. Simmonds plays a deaf character, Regan, as she adapts to the new world with her hearing family. A Quiet Place - Part II will be coming out in September, as the story continues. Be sure to check it out as the films portray a deaf character accurately and beautifully within a suspenseful storyline.

Other Facts on Simmonds

- Born in Bountiful, Utah
- Simmonds was nominated in 2018 and 2019 for "Best Young Performer" at the Critics' Choice Awards.
- Simmonds also stars in the 2017 film Wonderstruck

Other Facts on A Quiet Place

- 95% of movie is in silence
- An ASL adviser and interpreter were on set to help with communication and portrayal of scenes.
- The whole cast learned ASL for the movie.
- A Quiet Place is available on Hulu with a subscription or for rent on Amazon Prime, Youtube, or Google Play.
- Sequel is set to come out September 4, 2020

